- I like all the design choices you are making right now with color scheme and layout. I really like how at the navigation it changes font and color to indicate which page you are on.
- On the home page, the arrows should become clickable so we can see new pictures, and the bigger buttons should become clickable as well.
- For the ribbon across the buttons, I'd like it either to extend all the way up to the red section above it or each side of the ribbon to be cut off where the button ends.
- For the grid, I'd like there to be a little more space between each column so there is more breathing room.
